Part of this year's London Short Film Festival, 'Kazik And The Kommander's Car', directed by Hannah Lovell, produced by Katy Carr and with artwork by Galen Wainwright, is a DVD release like no other. Essentially a short documentary film, the DVD includes the music video to the song dedicated Kazik's incredible story – with film extras that bring history to life through Kazik's poignant first-hand account of his escape from Auschwitz.

On June 20th 1942, Kazik Piechowski, a Polish boy scout, and three other political prisoners, disguised themselves as SS officers and drove out of Auschwitz, the German Nazi concentration camp, where they had been imprisoned for two years. The car they took was a Steyr 220 that belonged to the SS Kommandant, Rudolf Höss. Upon learning Kazik's remarkable escape story, British-Polish songwriter Katy Carr, now nominated for the London Music Award 2012, wrote a song to honour it, called 'Kommander's Car'. In August 2009 Katy Carr went to Gdansk in Poland with the sole purpose of meeting the very man who inspired her musical composition.

'KAZIK AND THE KOMMANDER'S CAR is an inspiring story that reaches across generations. The film's director has perfectly captured Kazik's predicament and through Katy Carr's songwriting skills makes the story relevant to today's audiences.' PHILIP ILSON,
Director of London Short Film Festival

In the film 'Kazik and the Kommander's Car', we witness the songwriter's first moments with Kazik, then aged 90, and see her play him the tribute song 'Kommander's Car'. Through Kazik's strong and moving response to the song, we have a direct window in to his memory and experience. The song highlights how vital the last terrifying 80 metres were in the escape and the music video is a bold visual interpretation of this final and dramatic moment.

'So many people have tried to document Auschwitz, but this song and music video are different. They play on the symbols of Auschwitz and the feelings of the escape. This is something new for the world.' KAZIK PIECHOWSKI

This DVD is the result of that legendary meeting and is comprised of three cinematic responses: a short documentary, a music video (with animation) and over ninety minutes of film extras featuring interviews with Kazimierz Piechowski. Viewers can discover Kazik Piechowski's inspirational character and story, his life as a boy scout, and what happened to him after his escape from Auschwitz.

'From the moment that the first note is struck of Katy Carr's song Kommander's Car... to the emotional climax that is Kazik's incredible escape from Auschwitz, one is gripped by this extraordinary short film. A must see.' DAVID RUSSELL,
Coordinator, Tower Hamlets Holocaust Memorial Day
